Cumberland/Gloucester/Salem Vicinage Honors Probation Officers during Probation, Parole and Community Supervision Week - July 17-23, 2011

The Chief Probation Officers of New Jersey recognized probation workers from around the state. Seventeen individuals from the Cumberland/Gloucester/Salem Vicinage, Vicinage 15 of the Superior Court, were selected for recognition.

Probation officers enforce court orders for supervision, treatment, child support, restitution and various other requirements of the New Jersey courts.

New Jersey Probation makes a great contribution to safer communities, stronger families, and an improved life for all New Jersey citizens.

"Probation supervision can have an immediate, positive effect on the lives of individuals and families, which can extend for generations into the future," said Robert Miles, vicinage chief probation officer. "I'm glad we can take this opportunity to recognize the dedicated service of our staff in this very important work."
