Three from Union Vicinage Probation Division Honored with CPONJ Awards

Three Union Vicinage Probation Division staff received awards from the Chief Probation Officers of New Jersey Association (CPONJ) at a ceremony at the Richard J. Hughes Justice Complex in Trenton, NJ on July 17.

Annisa Jones received the Outstanding Achievement Award. Jones is a judiciary clerk 2 assigned to the adult file room in the Elizabeth office. She completes her work in a professional and pleasant manner and is known for helping locate files that have been removed from the records room.

Aida Johnson received the Meritorious Service Award. Johnson is a master probation officer assigned to juvenile supervision. Johnson volunteered to participate in many Career Day events.

Wendi Cabell received the Career Achievement Award. Cabell is a court services supervisor 2 assigned to adult supervision. Cabell began her career with the Judiciary in 1982 and has worked in the Passaic and Union vicinages. She has served as a probation officer, senior probation officer and a master probation officer and has worked in the family, criminal and probation divisions. She was recognized for her dedication to public service.

Raymond U. Reynolds, Union Vicinage chief probation officer, said he was proud of the recipients and thanked them for their contributions to probation and the community.

Acting Trial Court Administrator James Agro noted that “all probation staff, whether or not they are dealing directly with constituents, play an important role in the processing of probation caseloads. Cases cannot progress unless the records are available to the probation officers; delivering the message of what probation is to the community at large is critical to assisting our citizens, especially the young ones, in attempting to lead them away from crime; and having a team member with 33 years of service brings institutional knowledge to the immediate team and the division as a whole. Assignment Judge Karen M. Cassidy and I are very happy that these three individuals were recognized by the CPONJ at Friday’s ceremony. We are proud of their individual accomplishments.”
