Sanity Orders 12. Orders Mandating Disposition of a Defendant Found Fit to Stand Trial Who Does Not Meet the Standard for Civil Commitment

The text of the following two proposed orders have been drafted for use when the court has determined that a defendant is fit to proceed to trial or has regained his fitness to proceed to trial but the defendant is not dangerous to self, others or property as a result of mental illness. As a result, the court cannot commit the defendant and must therefore make other arrangements for any needed confinement or supervision.
