

NOTICE TO THE BAR

2025 OMNIBUS RULE AMENDMENT ORDER & SUPREME COURT ACTION ON NON-RULE RECOMMENDATIONS (CIVIL, CRIMINAL, FAMILY)

The Supreme Court has approved amendments to a number of Court Rules and Appendices as part of an annual review it conducts, as set forth in the attached 2025 Omnibus Rule Amendment Order dated July 31, 2025. A list of the rules being amended is included as part of the order. This notice highlights some of those amendments, as well as the Court's action on certain non-rule recommendations. All amendments and other actions are effective September 1, 2025.

Civil – Landlord Tenant

- New Mandatory Residential Landlord Tenant Complaint Form

The Court has amended Rule 6:3-4(c) to make the residential landlord tenant complaint form mandatory rather than only a model. Further, informed by input from landlord attorneys and tenant advocates, the Court has amended the content and structure of this now required form, as follows: (1) to separate rent from additional rent and clarify when additional rent can be charged; (2) to require the landlord to specify any asserted basis for exemption from registration requirements; (3) to reference the municipality in which the rental unit is located and to specify whether the unit is subject to a rent control ordinance; (4) to identify the core provisions of a lease that must be attached to the complaint (when the lease exceeds 10 pages); and (5) to require the filing party to select and explain the basis for a holdover cause of action.

- Revised Summons and Timeframe for Notice of Trial Date

The Court has amended Rule 6:2-1 to require notice to the parties of the trial date 21 days (rather than five weeks) after service of the summons and has amended Appendix XI-B to include in the summons the trial date, time, and location.

- Landlord CIS & Adjournments for Rental Assistance

The Court has revised the Landlord Case Information Statement (Landlord CIS) (CN 12770) to remove reference to the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security (CARES) Act and has shortened the initial timeframe for judicial adjournment of trial dates based on a tenant's proof of pending application for rental assistance to up to 30 days (from up to 60 days). The revised form can be found here.

Civil – Arbitration

The Court in its June 24, 2025 Order amended Rule 4:21A-6(b) (“Entry of Judgment; Trial de Novo”) to enable a party to file a motion seeking de novo review up to 10 days after the expiration of the standard 30-day deadline, for good cause shown. The Court has rescinded the amendment and the related Official Comment.

Since the June 24, 2025 Order, the Judiciary implemented a process to issue an electronic reminder to parties before the expiration of the 30-day deadline to file a demand for a trial de novo. The Judiciary has begun and will continue to issue this reminder notice seven days before the 30-day deadline. The new electronic notice will remind all parties of the approaching deadline sufficiently in advance to facilitate timely filing of the trial de novo demand.

Criminal

- In-Court Identification and Video Narration Procedures

Following State v. Washington, 256 N.J. 136 (2024), and State v. Watson, 254 N.J. 558 (2023), the Court has amended Rules 3:9-1, 3:11-1, and 3:13-3, and adopted new Rule 3:11-2, to establish procedures for in-court identifications and video narration.

Under new Rule 3:11-2, to conduct a first-time in-court identification, the State must file a motion before trial. Before the hearing, the State must disclose all related witness communications and produce records of any previous out-of-court identification attempts. Amended Rule 3:11-1 requires the electronic recording of any identification procedure during trial preparation if a witness has not previously identified the defendant. If a witness who has already made an identification is shown the same or new visual depictions during trial preparation, parties must make a contemporaneous written record of the session. For video narration testimony, amended Rule 3:9-1 requires a written summary of proposed narration testimony to be provided before trial, and no later than the Pretrial Conference. If parties disagree on discovery scope, the court will hear the motion before trial.

- Withdrawal and Substitution of Counsel in Expungement Actions

The Court has amended Rules 1:11-2(a), 3:30-1, and 3:30-2 to allow counsel to file entries, withdrawals, and substitutions of appearance in expungement petitions at any time through the eCourts Expungement System, without leave of court and without a fee.

Family

- Public Access to Court Records

The Court is continuing to consider the Family Practice Committee's recommendation to amend Rule 1:38-3 to exclude all Family Court records from public access.

- Referrals of Non-Rule Recommendations

The Court is asking the Conference of Family Presiding Judges to review sample colloquies for minor name change proceedings and to consider a settlement track for divorce matters.

- Child Support Guidelines

Following the federally required Quadrennial Review of the Child Support Guidelines, the Court has amended Rules Appendix IX-F (the Basic Child Support Award Schedule), which may significantly affect individual child support awards.

- Removal of Certain Forms from the Rules Appendices; Access

The Court has removed the following three forms from the Rules Appendices, also adopting amendments to each; these and other forms will continue to be available on the Judiciary website, with future amendments to be announced by notice:

- Family Part Case Information Statement (CIS) (CN 10482) (revised form)

- Self-Represented Litigant Certification of Notification of Complementary Dispute Resolution (CDR) Alternatives (CN 10889) (revised form)

The prosecutor shall also provide defense counsel with a listing of the materials that have been supplied in discovery. If any discoverable materials known to the prosecutor have not been supplied, the prosecutor shall also provide defense counsel with a listing of the materials that are missing and explain why they have not been supplied.

If the defendant is represented by the public defender, defendant's attorney shall obtain a copy of the discovery from the prosecutor's office prior to the arraignment. However, if the defendant has retained private counsel, upon written request of counsel submitted along with a copy of counsel's entry of appearance and received by the prosecutor's office prior to the date of the arraignment, the prosecutor shall, within three business days, send the discovery to defense counsel either by U.S. mail at the defendant's cost or by e-mail without charge, with the manner of transmittal at the prosecutor's discretion.

A defendant who does not seek discovery from the State shall so notify the prosecutor, and the defendant need not provide discovery to the State pursuant to sections (b)(2) or (f), except as required by R. 3:12-1 or otherwise required by law.

The responsibility for the administration and enforcement of the judgment or order, including the transfer of responsibility, shall be governed by the policies established by the Administrative Director of the Courts. Alimony, maintenance, or child support payments not presently administered by the Probation Division shall be so made on application of either party to the court unless the other party, on application to the court, shows good cause to the contrary. In non-dissolution support proceedings, the court shall record its decision using the Uniform Order for Summary Support promulgated by the Administrative Director of the Courts. On the signing of any order that includes alimony, maintenance, child support, or medical support provisions to be administered by the Probation Division, the court shall, immediately after the hearing, send to the appropriate judicial staff one copy of the order which shall include a Confidential Litigant Information Sheet in the form prescribed by the Administrative Director of the Courts prepared by the parties or their attorneys providing the names, dates of birth, Social Security Numbers, and mailing addresses of the parents [and the children]; the occupation and driver's license number of the parent who is ordered to pay support; the policy number and name of the health insurance provider of the parent who is ordered to insure the children; and, if income withholding is ordered, the name and address of the obligor's employer. When a party or attorney must prepare a formal written judgment or order pursuant to a judicial decision that includes alimony, maintenance or child support or medical support provisions to be administered by the Probation Division, the court shall, on the date of the hearing, record the support and health insurance provisions on a Temporary Support Order using the form prescribed by the Administrative Director of the Courts and shall immediately have such order and a Confidential Litigant Information Sheet in the form prescribed by the Administrative Director of the Courts (if it has not yet been provided by the parties or counsel) delivered to the appropriate judicial staff so that a support account can be established on the New Jersey automated child support system. A probation account shall be established on the automated child support system within eight business days of the date the court order was signed. Demographic information provided on the Confidential Litigant Information Sheet shall be required to establish a probation account and send case initiation documents to the parties and the obligor's employer. The Temporary Support Order shall remain in effect until a copy of the final judgment or order is received by the Probation Division.

(g) Offenses Where Issuance of a Complaint-Warrant (CDR-2) is Presumed.

Unless issuance of a Complaint-Summons (CDR-1) rather than a Complaint-Warrant (CDR-2) is authorized pursuant to paragraph (h) of this rule, a Complaint-Warrant (CDR-2) shall be issued when a judicial officer finds pursuant to paragraph (c)(2) that there is probable cause to believe that the defendant committed contempt (N.J.S.A. 2C:29-9(a)) involving a violation of a condition of pretrial release to avoid contact with an alleged victim or a violation of a condition of home detention with or without the use of an approved electronic monitoring device ordered pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2A:162-17.

(h) Grounds for Overcoming the Presumption of Issuance of a Complaint-Warrant (CDR-2). Notwithstanding the presumption that a Complaint-Warrant (CDR-2) shall be issued when a defendant is charged with an offense set forth in paragraph (g) of this rule: (1) a judicial officer may authorize issuance of a Complaint-Summons (CDR-1) rather than Complaint-Warrant (CDR-2) if the judicial officer finds that were the defendant to be released without imposing or monitoring any conditions authorized under N.J.S.A. 2A:162-17, there are reasonable assurances that the defendant will appear in court when required, the safety of any other person or the community will be protected, and the defendant will not obstruct or attempt to obstruct the criminal justice process. The judicial officer shall not make such finding without considering the results of a preliminary public safety assessment using a risk assessment instrument approved by the Administrative Director of the Courts pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2A:162-25, and without also considering whether within the preceding ten years the defendant as a juvenile was adjudicated delinquent for escape, a crime involving a firearm, or a crime that if committed by an adult would be subject to the No Early Release Act (N.J.S.A. 2C:43-7.2), or an attempt to commit any of the foregoing offenses. The judicial officer shall also consider any additional information provided by a law enforcement officer or the prosecutor relevant to the pretrial release decision; or (2) a law enforcement officer may issue a Complaint-Summons (CDR-1) in accordance with guidelines issued by the Attorney General pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2A:162-16.

(j) [(h)] Failure to Appear After Summons. If a defendant who has been served with a summons fails to appear on the return date, a bench warrant may issue pursuant to law and Rule 7:8-9 (Procedures on Failure to Appear). If a corporation, partnership or unincorporated association has been served with a summons and has failed to appear on the return date, the court shall proceed as if the entity had appeared and entered a plea of not guilty.

(k) [(i)] Additional Complaint-Warrants (CDR-2) or Summonses. More than one Complaint-Warrant (CDR-2) or summons may issue on the same complaint.

(l) [(j)] Identification Procedures. If a summons has been issued or a Complaint-Warrant (CDR-2) executed on a complaint charging either the offense of shoplifting or prostitution or on a complaint charging any non-indictable offense where the identity of the person charged is in question, the defendant shall submit to the identification procedures prescribed by N.J.S.A. 53:1-15. (i) Except as set forth in subparagraph (ii), if a defendant in any non- parking case before the court fails to appear or answer a complaint, the court shall issue a notice advising the defendant of the rescheduled appearance and that a failure to appear at that rescheduled appearance may result in the issuance of a bench warrant on a form approved by the Administrative Director of the Courts. When issuing a bench warrant, the court shall simultaneously schedule the defendant to appear at a future court event.

5. Economic Basis for the Child Support Guidelines.

At the foundation of the child support guidelines are estimates of what parents in intact families spend on their children. Determining the cost of raising a child is difficult because most goods and services purchased by families are shared by adults and children. Economists estimate that approximately 65% of household spending is for pooled items (e.g., a car, a washing machine, or a box of laundry detergent used in common by all household members). Even for goods that are privately consumed (e.g., clothing, food), expenditure surveys are not detailed enough to link individual household members (adults or children) to a particular expenditure. Together, pooled and privately consumed goods account for about 90% of total household expenditures. Since most expenditures on children cannot be observed directly, economists use an indirect method of determining child-rearing costs known as marginal-cost estimation. Marginal-cost estimation attempts to find the added cost of a child to a family by comparing the expenditures of families considered equally well-off economically and have different numbers of children. For example, if two families (one with and one without a child) are equally well-off, the additional expenses of the family with a child are assumed to be the marginal cost of the child.

Selecting a Standard of Well-Being - Before estimating the marginal cost of children, a standard of well-being must be defined. Different marginal cost estimation methods use different standards of well-being. Although several standards have been used in the past, no consensus has emerged as to which provides the most credible result. Two of the most widely used marginal-cost estimation methods, Rothbarth and Engel, employ the standards of well-being described below.

Engel - The standard of well-being is the proportion of household income spent on food. Thus, if two families spend the same percentage of their income on food, they are considered equally well-off.

Rothbarth - This standard of well-being is based on how parents adjust their spending on adult goods due to the presence of a child. In other words, well-being is measured by comparing excess-income (i.e., after necessary expenditures for the family) available to purchase adult goods such as adult clothing, alcohol, tobacco, and entertainment.

Consumer Expenditure Data - Once an estimation technique is chosen, the household expenditure data to which it is applied must be selected. Typically, economists use data from the Consumer Expenditure Survey (CEX). The CEX is the most detailed source of national data on household expenditures and how they vary by family composition, size, geographic location and socioeconomic characteristics. The CEX collects expenditure information for hundreds of household consumption items including food, housing, clothing, transportation, education, [child care] childcare, health care, and entertainment. The CEX is a cross-sectional survey designed to represent the civilian, non-institutional population in the United States. To be included in the CEX sample, the family must have participated in three or four interviews during the year. Approximately 5,000 families participate in the CEX each quarter. CEX results are published annually, however, the results are generally three years old by the time they are available for public use. The CEX is considered the best available source of information for determining the cost of children using marginal-cost estimation techniques.

The Betson Analysis - In September 1990, Dr. David Betson of the University of Notre Dame published child-rearing estimates based on his analysis of pooled CEX data from 1980 through the first quarter of 1987, a variety of estimation techniques, and alternative definitions of the standard of well-being. As did previous studies, Dr. Betson's analysis resulted in a wide range of estimates of expenditures on children. Dr. Betson, like other economists, believes that the true range of marginal expenditures on children lies at some interval between the Engel and Rothbarth estimates. The Engel estimates, which are close to per capita (i.e., equal shares), clearly overstate the marginal cost of children and, thus, represent the upper bound of spending on children. Economists know that the Engel estimates are incorrect, but do not have the same information about the Rothbarth estimates. Thus, the Rothbarth estimates may represent the true level of marginal spending on children or the theoretical lower bound of that spending. Dr. Betson concluded that the Rothbarth method produced the best set of estimates on the marginal cost of children because it has the least empirical flaws and those that do exist have a minimal effect on the resulting estimates.

Estimating Spending on Children - The CEX does not have a direct measure of spending on children, so the expenditures on children are measured indirectly. The cost of raising children is estimated by comparing total spending in households without children to total spending in households with one, two, and three children in all income categories covered by the tables. Although this may be an indicator of the marginal increase in household spending when children are added, it does not give a complete picture since income constraints may also force adults to spend less on themselves to share what income is available with their child(ren). To measure the impact children make on adult household spending, the Betson-Rothbarth estimation method provides for a greater robustness of data. This approach, utilized by David Macpherson, Ph.D., Trinity University, the economist who conducted the review of Appendix IX-F of the New Jersey Child Support Guidelines in 2024, analyzes the change in expenditures on adult clothing as this has been ascertained as the best estimator of expenditures on children in the household, [economists Michael and Lazear have ascertained that measuring the change in expenditures on adult clothing gives the best estimate of expenditures on children in the household. This particular "estimator," which is a derivative of the Rothbarth methodology adopted to current use by Dr. William Rodgers, III, Chief Economist of the John J. Heldrich Center for Workforce Development, Edward Bloustein School of Planning and Public Policy, at Rutgers University, is] along with the marginal increases in overall household spending, analyzed to arrive at the overall cost of child rearing as reflected in the awards table. The CEX data is also adjusted to account for the variety of educational levels, ethnic backgrounds, and other factors specific to the population of New Jersey.

Adjusting the Appendix IX-F Schedule for One Child – Using the traditional estimator, each of the schedules if adjusted for inflation, closely mirrored the current award schedule in Appendix IX-F, except for the schedule related to one child. The number based upon the estimator was significantly lower for one child. According to Dr. Macpherson, this was likely an anomaly due to the sample size of CEX data for one child, which was smaller than that for more children. In fact, the sample size for one child was about one-half of the sample size for two or more children. As the estimates for all other children consistently mirrored the inflation adjustment, the schedule of awards for one child was adjusted for inflation as well. Dr. Macpherson indicated that relying on the inflation adjustment as a substitute estimator for one child complements the current practice of applying the biennial cost of living adjustment to child support awards, which is adjusted for inflation.

Development of Child Support Award Schedules – Dr. Macpherson's 2024 [Dr. Rodgers' 2012] study estimates parental expenditures on one, two, and three children as a percentage of total household outlays. To do this, Macpherson [Rodgers] uses the estimation method developed in the Betson analysis (1990) [the Lazear and Michael treatise (1988)] and transforms the Rothbarth parameters into a schedule of child support obligations by using the following steps:

a. converting child-related spending as a proportion of consumption to a proportion of net income;

b. updating estimates to 2022 [2011];

c. adjusting the schedule for one child based on inflation alone due to anomalies in data;

[c.] d. adjusting the schedule to reflect New Jersey's higher cost of living as measured by the "Consumer Price Index - All Urban Consumers" (CPI-U);

[d.] e. deducting the cost of [child care] childcare and unreimbursed health care expenses that exceed $ 250 per child per year (these expenses are added to the basic obligation);

[e.] f. extrapolating the estimates to families with four, five, and six children;

[f.] g. computing marginal proportions between income intervals so that the support schedule can be constructed in ten dollars increments;

[g.] h. using the Rothbarth and marginal proportions to create the relationship between support obligations and combined net weekly income; and

[h.] i. using median regression to smooth (remove remaining kinks/discrete jumps) the relationship.

6. Economic Principles Included in the Child Support Guidelines.

a. There is no absolute cost of raising children. The cost of raising children is inferred from the amount that parents spend on their children. A child's marginal cost is the amount of spending above what the parents would spend if they did not have a child.

b. Larger households have lower per-person costs due to economies of scale and the sharing of family goods (i.e., unit prices decrease as quantities and sharing increase).

c. Total spending on children increases with family size but at a decreasing rate. Support awards increase with the number of children in the family.

d. When a family's total outlays rise, child-related spending increases roughly in the same proportion. In the [Rodgers] Macpherson study's analysis, as one moves from the lowest to highest of the 22 income intervals, the average increase in total outlays is 8%, 11%, and 8% [7%, 6%, and 7%] for one child, two children, and three children. The comparable average increases in the expenditures on children are 9%, 12%, and 9% [7%, 7%, and 9%].

e. As a family's income increases, child-related expenditures increase because parents use a portion of their disposable income to improve their children's quality of life. [From the Lazear and Michael model, the change (derivative) in child-related expenditures with respect to family income has two components. The second portion of the derivative is the positive impact that income has on total expenditures.]

f. Child-related expenditures as a percentage of family consumption are relatively constant across most of the income scale.

g. As income increases, total family consumption spending declines as a proportion of net income since income items such as savings, personal insurance, and gifts increase with family income. Families at lower level of the income ladder have consumption spending that may exceed 100% of net income. In contrast, high-income families may spend only 60% to 75% of net income on consumption items.

h. As a family's income increases, child-related expenditures as a proportion of family income decline, even though these expenditures as a percentage of a family's consumption spending remain fairly constant. The difference between spending as a proportion of family income and a proportion of consumption is due to the effect of income taxes, savings and charitable contributions. Income allocated to these items is not available for consumption spending.

i. Due to economies of scale, the sharing of family goods and the redistribution of adult spending, as the number of children increases, the additional cost of each child has a less than proportionate increase. Dr. Macpherson [Dr. Rodgers] estimates that child-related expenditures for two children are less than twice as much as child-related expenditures for one child. For two children, the average cost across the 22 income intervals is 1.6 [1.7] more than one child. Also, the child-related expenditures for three children are less than two [three] times as much as one child. This study average is 1.9 [2.2] more than one child. These estimates lie in the range of those reported in the 2004 and 2015 to 2019 Policy Studies report for New Jersey.

7. Assumptions Included in the Child Support Guidelines.

a. Intact Family Spending Patterns as the Standard for Support Orders. Support guidelines based on spending patterns of intact families provide an adequate level of support for children. Child-rearing expenditures of single parents provide little guidance for setting adequate child support awards since single-parent households generally have less money to spend compared with intact families. The fact that single parents actually do spend less income on children compared with two-parent families does not mean that they should spend less if the other parent has the means to increase total spending on the children through support payments. Also, the level of spending by single parents on their children has no relation to adequacy or the needs of the children but is a function of the total amount of income available to those parents.

b. Standard of Living. Although these support guidelines attempt to approximate the same level of marginal spending on children before divorce or separation, the resulting child support awards do not guarantee that the children's standard of living will remain the same if one of those events occurs. Usually, the children's standard of living will decline since the child support award (based on marginal spending) is being added to a much smaller level of base household expenditures. Less total money is available in the primary household of the child after divorce or separation since the other parent's income is no longer available. Less money means a decline in household expenditures which results in a lower standard of living. Additionally, some economies of scale are lost when one parent leaves the household.

c. Marginal-Cost Estimation. For determining child support obligations, marginal-cost estimation techniques, which provide the additional cost of children based on intact-family spending patterns, are more appropriate than average-cost methods that divide spending between all family members equally (per capita).

d. The Rothbarth Marginal Cost Estimator. The Rothbarth marginal cost estimation techniques [(e.g., Betson and Lazear and Michael)] provide the most accurate and robust estimates of parental expenditures on children in dual-parent families. [Dr. Rodgers' 2012] Dr. Macpherson's 2024 analysis of the [2000 to 2011] 2013 to 2019 micro data of the Consumer Expenditure Survey provides the most current and reliable estimates of child-related expenditures in dual-parent families.

e. National versus New Jersey Spending on Children. Because the Rothbarth estimates are for the U.S. and it is well known that New Jersey's income distribution is very different from the U.S. income distribution, [Dr. Rodgers] Dr. Macpherson uses U.S. Census data to equate the income of New Jersey and U.S. families and constructs proportions to smooth the schedule or remove discrete jumps in obligation as net income rises. This follows the same principle as in the 2004 Policy Studies Report for New Jersey. The [2010] 2015 to 2019 U.S. and New Jersey income distribution in the American Community Survey was used to adjust the Rothbarth estimates.

f. NCP/PAR Time. The awards in the support schedules represent spending on children by intact families. In an intact family, the children reside in one household and no NCP/PAR Time is needed. This is similar to child support actions in which one parent has sole physical custody of a child and there is no NCP/PAR Time. The awards in the Appendix IX-F support schedules represent situations in which the child is with the custodial parent 100% of the time. Although the Appendix IX-F awards are not reduced for NCP/PAR Time, they may be adjusted, if these factors are present in a specific case, through worksheet calculations. For further information and assumptions related to NCP/PAR Time adjustments and their related assumptions, see paragraphs 13 and 14 respectively.

g. Effect of a Child's Age. [Dr. Rodgers' 2012] Dr. Macpherson's 2024 study does not provide estimates on child-rearing expenditures by children's age groups. The Appendix IX-F awards represent the average cost of raising a child from age zero through 17 years (i.e., the total marginal cost averaged over 18 years). Studies have shown that expenditures are higher than the average for teen-aged children and lower than the average for preteen children.

h. Self-Support Reserve. The self-support reserve is a factor in calculating a child support award only when one or both of the parents have income at or near the poverty level. The self-support reserve is 150% of the U.S. poverty guideline for one person. It attempts to ensure that the obligor has sufficient income to maintain a basic subsistence level and the incentive to work so that child support can be paid. A child support award is adjusted to reflect the self-support reserve only if payment of the child support award would reduce the obligor's net income below the reserve and the custodial parent's (or the Parent of the Primary Residence's) net income minus the custodial parent's share of the child support award is greater than 150% of the poverty guideline. The latter condition is necessary to ensure that custodial parents can meet their basic needs so that they can care for the children. As of January 1, 2025, the self-support reserve is $451 per week (This amount is 150% of the poverty guideline for one person).

i. Income Tax Withholding. For wage earners, income tax withholding rates provide an accurate estimate of after-tax income available to pay weekly support obligations. Income tax withholding may differ from end-of-year tax obligations due to the parent's filing status and the number of dependents, deductions and credits reported or claimed by each parent.

j. Spending of Child Order. These guidelines assume that the obligee is spending the support award for the benefit of the child or children.

k. Sharing of Child-Rearing Expenses. These guidelines assume that the parents are sharing in the child-rearing expenses in proportion to their relative incomes. To the extent that this is not true (i.e., if one parent is paying all costs associated with housing for the child from his or her own income) and can be proven to the court, a guidelines-based support award may require adjustment.

Schedule of Child Support Awards

Combined Weekly Income	One Child	Two Children	Three Children	Four Children	Five Children	Six Children
For combined net incomes that are less than $180 per week, the court shall establish a child support award based on the obligor's net income and living expenses and the needs of the child. In these circumstances, the support award should be between $5.00 per week and the support amount at $180 combined net weekly income as shown on this schedule.

Uniform Interrogatories for Cohabiting Party Contesting Alimony Review - For Post-Judgment Application (N.J.S.A. 2A:34-23(n))

Pursuant to R. 4:17-1(c), all questions must be answered unless excused by the court or protected by privilege or order. Responses shall not be used improperly and shall follow the Rules of Court, including R. 1:38, and the Rules of Professional Conduct.

Consistent with Cardali v. Cardali, 255 N.J. 85 (2023), a party must answer these interrogatories only if the court makes a finding that a prima facie showing of cohabitation has been established. This will include filing updated case information statements as required by R. 5:5-4(a)(4), responding to interrogatories and requests for production of documents, and any other limited discovery deemed necessary by the court.

Discovery requested shall be limited to two years preceding the filing date of the cohabitation motion unless the court, for good cause, decides a different timeframe.
