The premise that there is "institutional bias and inequality", in the the courts, or in the justice system in general in New Jersey is not based on any empirical data, and are merely talking point of the radical left and marxist ideology that is attempting to divide and destroy our country. I would ask the committee to review the survey of judges and see the percentage of judges that have bad marks on the question of bias. I would say it is close to zero.

When the courts in New Jersey are swayed by radical ideology that is a sad day indeed and dangerous to our criminal justice system.

If you want to look at injustice look to class economic injustice in which the working middle class (White, Black, Hispanic) are denied equal justice because of lack of monetary resources to defend or pursue justice.

Let's get real and talk about the real injustice in our legal justice system.
